

No 10 Harris Inn

Jan. 16. 1795.

Newmarket Jan.

AMONG the rest of my Friends I take the Liberty of sending you a Copy of the inclosed Proposals, previous to my Intention of Submitting them to the general Inspection of the Public, if they meet with that Encouragement in this first Instance, which may induce me afterwards to proceed in my Design. In taking this Step it is by no Means my Wish to put you or any other of my Friends under a personal Contribution by subscribing to a Work, which perhaps you may consider of no real Use to you, unless you should think proper to do so of your own free Choice, for the Benefit of the Fund, which it is meant to serve; a Fund of the greatest and most general Utility, which my Mind could suggest to me, in a rising, and not long since barbarous, State.

If however you have any Connexions, who are likely to contribute to its Support, either by subscribing to it voluntarily themselves, or promoting the Execution of it by their Advice and Assistance, I should be much obliged to you for every Exertion of your Influence with them to that Effect.

In Addition to your kind Offices in this Respect among your Friends in this Country, should you have any Connexions in America, to whom you could furnish me with Letters of Recommendation with the same View, where it is presumed that a Work of this Kind will be generally interesting, you will very much increase the Obligations conferred upon

Your most obedient humble Servant,

Arthur Thomas

The Reverend Dr. Mearns }
Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford